 - Chapter 5, Student Culture
 - Culture is not formed by motivational speeches or statements of values. It is formed by repeated practice-using every minute of the day to build good habits.
 - Children will rise to the level of our expectations. It's our job to set those expectations- and teach them.
 - Student culture is what you see, not what you hope for.
 - Cultural systems are the foundation on which students develop virtuous action.
 - Culture leaders don't succeed because of charisma but because of constancy: always being there, repeatedly, as the calm in the eye of the storm.
 - Chapter 6, Staff Culture
 - A great staff culture is built on love-but that doesn't make it "soft." It's the steel that keeps your community going.

- Clear roles and clear schedules mean a clear mind: you drive out the clutter and allow a teacher to focus on teaching.
